CAPPING

Capping is an essential component of a feature or retaining wall, pillar or pier. It dresses the horizontal surface and creates continuity between the vertical and horizontal surfaces enhancing the structure's overall appearance.

Capping provides the perfect finishing touches to any structure, softening harsh or unfinished edges. It also offers practical advantages such as protecting walls from the ingress of water or providing extra seating when installed on a low wall.

When choosing stone capping, the style should match the type of stone wall cladding being used, with a focus on the colour and texture to maximise visual continuity.

Stone capping comes with a choice of edges including rock-faced, split-faced, bull-nosed and squared.

It also comes in a variety of thicknesses and finishes such as sawn, or honed, and can be natural, smooth faced, sandblasted or acid washed, depending on the kind of natural stone you select and the look you're trying to achieve.
